

ABSTRACT

Methods are provided for detecting an alteration in a target nucleic acid. Methods of the invention are useful for detecting and identifying mutations that are indicative of disease or the predisposition for disease

2225879_1

FOOTNOTES